NOTES TO THE READER.

- I. The Astronomical calculations in this work are made to true clock time. The effects of Refraction, according to the latest improved Tables of Bessel, and the Equation of Time, have both been applied to the times of the Sun's rising and setting; so that the Almanac, and a good clock, will agree the year round.
- II. A Time-piece may be set very nearly true by the rising, setting, or southing of the Sun, Moon, or Stars,—but more accurately by the Sun (or the southing of the Sun, or a fixed Star), any where on or near the 40th degree of north latitude.
- III. The time of the rising, setting, or southing of a fixed Star may be carried several days forward by subtracting, or backward by adding 4 minutes per day.
- IV. The common day of 24 hours begins at midnight, and morning (marked morn) continues from midnight till noon; and afternoon (marked aft.) continues from noon till midnight; this should be remembered carefully when looking for the times of the rising, setting, or southing of the Moon or Stars soon after midnight.

ECLIPSES.

In the year 1879 there will be two Eclipses of the Sun, and one of the Mcon.

I. An annular Eclipse of the Sun, on the 22d of First Month, invisible in North America; visible in South America and Africa.

II. An annular Eclipse of the Sun on the 19th of Seventh Month, visible in Africa and the Indian Ocean.

III. A partial Eclipse of the Moon on the 28th of Twelfth Month, occurring after sunrise, consequently invisible.

SEASONS.

The Sun enters  $\varphi$  Third Month 20th, at 7h. P. M., when Spring commences, and the days and nights are equal.

The Sun enters 55 Sixth Month 21st, at 3h. P. M., when Summer commences, and the longest day occurs.

The Sun enters \(\sime\) Ninth Month 23d, at 5h. A. M., when Autumn commences, and the days and nights are again equal.

The Sun enters 13 Twelfth Month 21st, at 11h. P.M., when Winter commences, and the shortest day occurs.

RISING, SETTING AND SOUTHING OF THE PLANETS.

It should be observed that these are not sensibly affected by the longitude of a place. When the hour is less than six, it is in the morning; when greater than six, it is in the evening.

souths Phila. Anecdote of John Woolman.

A few years previous to the Revolutionary War, there fell in Philadelphia in the early part of the Second month, a heavy snow, which, deep enough every where to impede the progress of foot passengers, had drifted at places into banks, almost impassable. At this time resided in a small two-story house at the head of a court running westward from Front above Sassafras, a woman, in the prime of youthful vigor, and yet waxing towards the shady side of thirty, who was loved, honored and respected by every one that knew her. Beferé the sun, who is a sad loiterer below the horizon in the wintry days, had looked with rosy smiles on the white-roofed houses, the door of the aforesaid house partly opened, and a sober maiden with cap on head and kerehief pinned with mathematical precision, pecped 8 45 through with inquiring eyes on

Is not this a beautiful and characteristic aneedote of one enderly alive all his life to the eelings and comforts of others. The breakfast he had thus earned, was eheerfully furnished him; and with comfortable feelings and a good sharp appetite, we doubt not but he enjoyed it. What a treat would it have been, to have been permitted, pen in hand, to have listened to the conversation of these worthies, as they thankfully partook of the blessings of Providence.—The Friend.

One of the conditions of the reaty with Mexico, it is said, that any future war which nay break out between the two ountries, shall be conducted on hristian principles. Now, we ll know that this is an age of rogress, and that all sorts of nprovements are constantly takng place in all sorts of matters; ut war on Christian principles s eertainly the latest, and, if it e carried out, we think it will rove the greatest of them all.

Just imagine it; we think we an see the two armies drawn ut in battle array. A fair field before them; the ranks are ormed, the positions are taken, he great guns are unlimbered. denoral Scott is just about to ive the order to fire, when an aid comes up and respectfully 3 reminds him that "the war is to

"But how do you ever know which party conquers in this fighting on Christian principles?"

"That is the great beauty of it. Both sides conquer, and there are never any killed and wounded."—Tract.

None can be infallibly, universally, absolutely inspired. Perfect inspiration could be received only by perfect beings, fulfiling absolutely all the laws of mind and morals. In man there must always remain somewhat merely human, personal, fallible.

The light which comes pure from the sun of truth is refracted as it enters the atmosphere of our thoughts, and receives from it colors of all kinds, doubly refracted when it is reproduced in human language. There is somewhat divine and somewhat of human in the noblest thoughts and words of man.—

Cobbe.

LONGEVITY.

In the County Chronicle, dated December 13, 1791, a paragraph was inserted, stating that Thomas Cam, according to the Parish Register of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, died the 28th January, 1588, aged 207 years. Our correspondent having lately met with this paragraph in his common place book, determined, he says, to apply to the Parish clerk of Saint Leonards, from whom he obtained an extract from the Register of Burials, a literal copy of which is subjoined:

> 1588. Burialles, Fol. 35. Thomas Cam was buriel* the 22 Inst. of January, aged 207 years. Holy well Street Geo: Garrow Parish Clerk. Copy, Aug. 25, 1832.

* The word buriel is 14 rectly copied from the origi-4 nal.—Selected.

NICHOLAS WALN.

On Third-day, the 4th of the Second month, 1772, Friends of Philadelphia were gathered to a youth's meeting, held in their Market street house. The meeting had sat some time in silence, when a young man, not dressed in plain attire, of a remarkably good form, of middle height, well proportioned, and with a fine shaped head well set on his shoulders,-of features regular and manly, but not beautiful, and at that time agitated with powerful emotions, left his seat in the middle of the house, and advanced to the preachers' gallery. Surprise, no doubt, was awakened in many minds to see a youth in the dress of a worldling, stepping to that place; and the astonishment was not removed, when they beheld him kneel down in the attitude of prayer. The congregation arose, but for some minutes the internal agitation of the young man seemed to preclude utterance. At last his lips opened and with a tremulous but powerfully melodious voice, these aspirations burst forth:

"Oh Lord God! arise, and let thine enemies be scattered. Baptize me,—dip me,—yet deeper in Jordan. Wash me in the laver of regeneration.

"Thou hast done much for me, and hast a right to expect much;—therefore, in the presence of this congregation, I resign myself and all that I have, to thee, Oh Lord!—it is thine! And I pray thee, Oh Lord! to give me grace to enable me to continue firm in this resolution!

"Wherever thou leadest me, Oh Lord! I will follow thee; if through persecution, or even to martyrdom. If my life is required, I will freely sacrifice it.—Now I know that my Redeemer liveth, and the mountains of difficulty are removed.

Hallelujah!

"Teach me to despise the shame, and the opinions of the people of the world. Thou knowest, Oh Lord! my deep baptisms. I acknowledge my manifold sins and transgressions. I know my unworthiness of the many favors I have received; and I thank thee. Oh Father! that thou hast hid thy mysteries from the wise and prudent, and revealed them to babes and sucklings. Amen."

Slowly, sentence by sentence came forth, and whilst breathing the spirit of humble supplication, or bursting forth in a hallelujah of praise, they baptized the hearers into tears.

This young suppliant, was Nicholas Waln, at that time one of the shrewdest, most promising, and most popular lawyers the Philadelphia bar. For some months he had been passing through deep religious exercises, during which "judgment day," as he was wont in after life to designate that period, all the sins of his youth came thronging into remembrance, with harrowing distinctness. In the agony of conciction and remorse for the past, he resigned his own will to he will of his Father in Heaven, and, in submission thereto, he had attended that meeting, where he had now publicly and solemnly dedicated the temple of his heart to the Lord's ervice.

When meeting was over he quietly went to his habitation, where he kept much retired for a time. He left the bar, gave up his briefs, put on the attire of the consistent Quaker, and in fervency of spirit sought to fill up his measure of reigious duty.

His natural peculiarities were of such a nature as ever to listinguish him from others; yet he labored harmoniously in the ministry of the Gospel, with men of weaker intellects, and widely different temperaments from his own. Strong good sense marked all he said; he had an acute perception of men, a keen sense of the ludicrous, and a nervous constitution of mind, which at times led him to actions inconsistent with his usual quiet, staid dignity of manners,—actions which he afterwards deeply regretted. Meek was he with the meek, but to the bombastic or hypocritical he was severe and sarcastic in no ordinary degree. Humor, at times, sparkled in his light eyes, and the reflection of ludicrous thought often dashed in changeable hues over his cheeks.

Since the days of dear old John Roberts of delightful memory,—that unmatchable man at answers, that wit in drab, whose little memoir is the delight of young and old,—there have always been in the Society of Friends, shrewd, intelligent men, quick at repartee, who turning upon antagonists a glance of sharp intelligence not looked for from under the shadow of their broad beavers, would by a few words of home thrust, cut down dogmatism at a blow, and leave overthrown pomposity to die of public contempt. William Penn had a large portion of this gift. Some of his controversial writings are full of that sort of wit and quaint humor, which never can go out of fashion, so long as man delights in those sudden turns, by which a few words demolish the theories built up in folios, the assertions put forth by intolerant bigotry. Cannot we picture to ourselves, William Penn, standing as a prisoner before the Recorder of London. Hear him answering accusations or asking questions, evincing his full appreciation of his own rights under Magna Charter, his knowledge of English law, and his keen perception of those points which would most perplex the Recorder to answer. There sits the brutal overbearing magistrate, a legalized expounder of English law, which he was violating, whilst attempting to brow-beat and over-awe the prisoner; and there stands William Penn, contending manfully for his rights. calm, composed, and evidently more fcared than fearing Hear the Recorder in the stupidity of error, supported by power, exclaiming, "If I should suffer you to ask questions till to-morrow morning, you would be never the wiser." A brighter flash of intellect kindles in the prisoner's eyes, a more sarcastic smile of innocent triumph curls his lip, as the quick-witted thought finds words, "That is, according as the

The same quickness in repartee is found in many of the earlier writers amongst Friends. Honest George Fox had it, it flashes through Ellwood's Memoirs,—Thomas Story's antagonists often felt its point.

What more apt illustration of this gift can be found than that furnished by the late Miers Fisher. Thus goes the Miers whilst walking in the streets of Philadelphia. during the early part of the American Revolution, met an acquaintance dressed as an officer in the American army. Miers stopped the person, and taking hold of the sword, addressed him thus: "Where art thou hurrying so fast, with this thing dangling by thy side?" "I am going to fight for my property and my liberty." Flash kindled up the eyes of his interrogator, with the keen spirit of sarcastic rebuke. whilst briefly and pungently he replied, "As for thy property, thou hast none; - and as for thy liberty, thou owest that to the elemency of thy creditors, me among the rest." Off went the man in his regimentals, with a lesson he forgot not soon; and the smile hung long about the mouth of the speaker as he watched the defeated warrior.

Nicholas Waln throughout his life was noted for quickness of repartee, and aptness of reply. He displayed it, when at the bar in his first case, he had the lawyer he had studied with as his opponent. His old master, when endeavoring to reply to the clear legal argument and close reasoning of his late student, exclaimed, "Have I brought up a young eagle to pick out my eyes?" "No," forcibly and distinctly, though in under tone, spoke out Nicholas, "to open them."—T. Scattergood and his Times.

PAINFULLY sensible of my own moral infirmities and liabilities to error, I instinctively shrink from assuming the office of teacher and guide of others. I simply wish to say that my ground of hope for myself and for humanity, is in that Divine fullness of love which was manifested in the life, teachings, and self sacrifice of Christ-the way, the truth, and the life. In the infinite mercy of God so revealed, and not in any work or merit of our nature, I reverently, humbly, yet very hopefully trust. I regard Christianity as a life rather than a creed, and in judging of my fellow men, I can use no other standard than that which our Lord and Master has given us. "By their fruits ve shall know them." The only Orthodoxy I am specially interested in, is that of life and practice. the awful and solemn theme of human destiny, I dare not dogmatize, but wait the unfolding of the great mystery in the firm faith, that whatever may be our particular allotment, God will do the best that is possible for all.—J. G. Whittier.

TOTAL DEPRAVITY.

O! never yet upon the scroll
Of the sin stained but priceless soul
Hath heaven inscribed "Despair."
Cast not the clouded gem away,
Quench not the dim but living ray—
My brother man, beware.
For underneath its clouds of sin
The heart of man retaineth yet
Gleams of its holy origin;
And half quenched stars that never set,
Dim colors of its faded bow
And early beauty linger there,
And o'er its wasted desert blow
Faint breathings of its morning air.

THE sense of duty is the greatest gift of God. The idea of God is the primary and highest revelation of God to the human mind; and all outward revelations are founded on and addressed to it. All mysteries of science and theology fade away before the grandeur of the simple perception of duty, which dawns upon the mind of a little child. That perception brings him into the moral kingdom of God. That lays on him an everlasting bond. He in whom the conviction of duty is unfolded, becomes subject from that moment to a law which no power in the universe can abro-He forms a new and indissoluble connection with God,—that of an accountable being. He begins to stand before an inward tribunal, on the decisions of which his whole happiness rests. He hears a voice, which if faith fully followed will guide him to perfection, and in neglecting which, he brings upon himself inevitable misery. We little understand the solemnity of the moral principle in every human mind. We think not how awful are its functions. We forget that it is the germ of immortality. Did we understand it, we should look with reverence upon every human being to whom it is given.—Channing.

Purity of Character.—Over the beauty of the plum and the apricot there grows a bloom and beauty more exquisite than the fruit itself—a soft, delicate flush spreads its flushing cheek. Now if you strike your hand over that, it is gone.

The flower that hangs in the morning, impearled with dew, arrayed with jewels—once shake it so that the beads roll off, and you may sprinkle water as you please, yet it can never be again what it was, when the dew fell silently on it from heaven. On a frosty morning you may see panes of glass covered with landscapes, mountains, lakes, trees, blended in a beautiful picture

Now lay your hand upon the glass, and by the scratch of your finger, or by the warmth of your palm, that delicate tracery will be obliterated. So there is in youth a beauty and purity of character, which, when once touched and defiled, can never be restored.

Let gratitude in acts of goodness flow Our love to God, in love to man below. ROBERT BURNS lodged at a friend's house one night, and left the following stanza in the room where he slept:

Thou dread power who reign'st above!

I know thou wilt me hear,
When for this scene of peace and love,
I make my prayer sincere.

The hoary sire—the mortal stroke, Long, long be pleased to spare; To bless his little filial flock; And show what good men are.

She, who her lovely offspring eyes
With tender hopes and fears;
O! bless her with a mother's joys,
But spare a mother's tears.

Their hope, their stay, their darling youth, In manhood's dawning blush; Bless him, thou God of love and truth Up to a parent's wish.

The beauteous, seraph sister band,
With earnest tears I pray;
Thou knowest the snares on every hand
Guide thou their steps alway.

When, soon or late, they reach that coast On life's rough ocean driven, May they rejoice no wanderer lost, A family in heaven.

THINGS REQUISITE.

Have a tear for the wretched—a smile for the glad; For the worthy applause—an excuse for the bad; Some help for the needy—some pity for those Who stray from the path where true happiness flows.

Have a laugh for the child in her play at thy feet; Have respect for the aged; and pleasantly greet The stranger that seeketh for shelter from thee— Have a covering to spare, if he naked should be.

Have a hope in thy sorrow—a calm in thy joy;
Have a work that is worthy thy life to employ;
And, oh! above all things on this side the sod,
Have peace with thy conscience and peace with thy God.

Chambers' Journal.

An effort to attain an object in which the heart is not directly engaged, is cold and unprofitable, and usually misspent. We must chasten our inclinations, before we can reform our lives.

SLIPPING AWAY.

They are slipping away—these sweet swift years,
Like a leaf on the current cast;
With never a break in their rapid flow,
We watch them as one by one they go
Into the beautiful past.

As silent and swift as a weaver's thread, Or an-arrow's flying gleam; As soft as the languorous breezes hid, That lift the willow's long golden lid, And ripple the glassy stream.

As light as the breath of the thistle down,
As fond as a lover's dream;
As pure as the flush in the sea-shell's throat,
As sweet as the wood bird's wooing note,
So tender and sweet they seem.

One after another we see them pass,
Down the dimly-lighted stair;
We hear the sound of their steady tread
In the steps of the centuries long since dead,
As beautiful and as fair.

There are only a few years left to love. Shall we waste them in idle strife? Shall we trample under our ruthless feet These beautiful blossoms rare and sweet, By the dusty way of life?

There are only a few swift years—ah, let
No envious taunts be heard;
Make life's fair pattern of rare design,
And fill up the measure with love's sweet wine,
But never an angry word!—National Repository.

A good conscience is better than two witnesses—it will consume your grief as the sun dissolves ice—it is a spring when you are thirsty—a staff when you are weary—a screen when the sun burns—a pillow in death.

NIGHTLY forbear to close thy eyes to rest,
Ere thou hast questioned well thy conscious breast;
What sacred duty thou hast left undone?
What act committed which thou ought to shun?
And as fair truth or error, marks the deed,
Let sweet applause, or sharp reproach succeed;
So shall thy steps, while this great rule is thine,
Undevious tread in virtue's paths divine.—Pythagoras.

Perhaps there never was a rule of conduct delivered by any uninspired moralist, which hath so powerful a tendency to promote the interest of virtue as the present precept. It is scarcely possible that the man who every night he lays his head on his pillow, reviews his actions of the day past, and fairly brings them to the tribunal of his conscience, should not rise the next morning with stronger impressions of his social and religious duties, and with a more guarded attention to avoid those moral deviations he had so severely arraigned.

THE TWO GLASSES.

There sat two glasses filled to the brim, On a rich man's table, rim to rim, One was ruddy and red as blood, And one as clear as the crystal flood. Said the glass of wine to the paler brother: "Let us tell the tales of the past to each other; I can tell of banquet and revel and mirth, And the proudest and grandest souls on earth Fell under my touch as though struck by blight, Where I was king, for I ruled in might, From the heads of kings I have torn the crown, From the heights of fame I have hurled men down; I have blasted many an honored name; I have taken virtue and given shame; I have tempted the youth with a sip, a taste That has made his future a barren waste. Far greater than any king am I Or than any army beneath the sky. I have made the arm of the driver fail, And sent the train from the iron rail; I have made good ships go down at sea, And the shrieks of the lost were sweet to me; For they said "Behold how great you be! Fame, strength, wealth, genius before you fall, For your might and power are over all." "Ho! ho! pale brother," laughed the wine,

"Can you boast of deeds as great as mine?" Said the water glass; "I cannot boast Of a king dethroned or a murdered host; But I can tell of a heart once sad By my crystal drops made light and glad. Of thirsts I've quenched, of brows I've laved; Of hands I have cooled and souls I have saved; I have leaped through the valley, dashed down the mountain, Flowed in the river and played in the fountain, Slept in the sunshine and dropped from the sky; And everywhere gladdened the landscape and eye. I have eased the hot forehead of fever and pain, I have made the parched meadows grow fertile with grain. I can tell of the powerful wheel of the mill, That ground out the flour and turned at my will. I can tell of manhood, debased by you, That I lifted up and crowned anew. I cheer, I help, I strengthen and aid; I gladden the heart of man and maid! I set the chained wine captive free, And all are better for knowing me. These are the tales they told each other, The glass of wine and the paler brother, As they sat together filled to the brim, On the rich man's table, rim to rim.

"GETTING INTO A SCRAPE."—The following origin of this phrase is given in the late Dr. Doran's "Memories of our Great Towns:"—The deer, which in the olden time, as elsewhere at the present period, were wont, at certain seasons, to dig up the land with their forefeet, in holes to the depth of a foot, or even half-a-yard, contributed a new word to our language. These were called "scrapes." For a wayfarer to tumble into one of these was sometimes at the cost of a broken leg; and, ultimately, any Cambridge man who found himself in an unpleasant position, from which extrication was difficult, was said to have "got into a scrape."

"Love divine will fill thy storehouse, Or thy handful will renew; Scanty fare for one, will often Make a royal feast for two.
"For the heart grows rich in giving, All its wealth is living grain, Seeds, which mildew in the garner Scattered, fill with gold the plain."

PEACE WITH THE WORLD.—The arms by which the ill-dispositions of the world are to be combated, and the qualities by which it is to be reconciled to us, and we reconciled to it, are moderation, gentleness, a little indulgence to others, a great deal of distrust of ourselves, which are not qualities of a mean spirit, as some may possibly think them, but virtues of a great and noble kind, and such as dignify our nature as much as they contribute to our repose and fortune; for nothing can be so unworthy of a well-composed soul as to pass away life in bickerings and litigations, in snarling and scuffling with every one around us. We must be at peace with our species,—if not for their sakes, yet very much for our own.—Burke.

Continuance in Prayer.—It has been said that no great work in literature or in science was ever wrought by a man who did not love solitude. We may lay it down as an elemental principle of religion that no large growth in holiness was ever gained by one who did not take time to be often, and long, alone with God. Not otherwise can the great central idea of God enter into a man's life, and dwell there supreme. * *

Prayer is, in the highest conception of it, a state rather than an act. A full fruition of its benefits depends on a continuity of its influences. Reduce it to two isolated experiments daily, and separate these by long blank hours in which the soul has no glimpse of God for its refreshment, and how can prayer be other than a toil, and often a drudgery?—Phelps.
